

When They Needed Us

After the bombs exploded,
and left their destructive stains,
they were faced with devastation,
and crumbling shattered remains.
That is when they needed us.

When they were desperate,
and needed a helping hand,
they looked across the ocean,
and invited us to this land.
That is when they needed us.

When they were in dire straits,
their smiles were inviting.
We rushed from overseas,
arriving as fast as lightning.
That is when they needed us.

When their workforce was low,
suffering from many ills,
they promised us riches,
for our talents and our skills.
That is when they needed us.

© Samantha Rodgers